MYER'S FEDERAL DECISIONS, A COMPLETE LIBRARY

OF

25,000 to 30,000 LARGE IMPERIAL OCTAVO PAGES,

Giving the best decisions, of the highest courts of the country, on every important question likely to arise in the practice of an attorney.

NOW THAT ONE HALF OF THE SERIES IS ISSUED CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER.

Those who think vast projects cannot be successful because they never accomplish anything, of course, doubt.

Those who fully realized the vast amount of good work necessary doubted, because the world's history shows that such enterprises are apt to fail.

Those who knew what a rare combination of workers of various kinds would be required, doubted if they could be brought together under one management and held there until the work was completed.

Those of the profession, who realized the value of this series, and fully appreciated it, were fearful that no such good luck would come to them as an honest and conscientious carrying out of the project, in all its details.

DOUBTS ARE NOW OF THE PAST.

The ability with which Mr. Myer laid out the principal heads, the rare good judgment he used in the assigning of cases to each, followed by the marked ability shown by the other editors in arranging the cases under proper sub-heads, and the faithfulness of their assistants in properly digesting points out of other cases, shows that, so far, nothing has been left undone that could in any way contribute to the best of editorial work.

This is fully attested to by the critics of all the law journals, who said so much in favor of the first ten volumes, as they issued, that they now are at a loss how to give further praise, and so, after giving an idea of the contents of the particular volume reviewed, wind up by saying, in substance, "we have already said so much in favor of this series that we can add nothing more—only call attention to old reviews."

We assure the public that the volumes yet to be issued will be edited with the same ability as those now in print.
